The first cabin was built on the border of Utah and Nevada, west of Corrine, Utah.
(How did it get to Heber?) It had been a Pony Express Station (where), a weigh station. (where?) Then it was moved to Corrine, Utah (from the Heber Creeper Grounds?). See V.P. 2 → 100 ft. See [unclear] 100 ft.

It was part of the assets of the Sons of the Utah Pioneers headquartered on the east bench of Salt Lake City, Utah. They sold their assets to the Heber Creeper Consortium as they tried to build an "Old Town Heber" on the original grounds of the Heber Creeper Railroad Station, west of 600 West in Heber City Apparently, Dr. Craig McArthur Sorenson (dentist) of Spanish Fork, Utah, bargained with Lowe Ashton, Jr. to purchase these two log cabins. Dr. Sorenson's wife is named Susanne Holfort Sorenson, and they live at 612 E. Scenic Drive in Spanish Fork, Utah.

The second cabin had stood near the corner as one turns onto Provo River Road, going north, past Uncle Jesse's (Hughes McCarroll) Mound (Memorial Hill).

Many citizens, including Florence and Ranae Van Wagoner called me to protest the sale and loss of these old icons of our beginning culture. (Just for my information, why couldn't you stop Lowe Ashton from selling the one?)

Another cabin, that of James Watson and Janet Campbell, were sold for $1,000.00 by John Milliner.

Ref. 1. Dr Green was present at the Heber Creeper Grounds on 23 September 1993 when these cabins were loaded. He obtained this information from the workmen.
